

SMA Roofing sorts out the cowboys

Cattledown based roofing contractors, SMA, donated liquid roofing materials to a young family in Plymouth. The couple had become the latest victim of cowboy builders in a recent episode of the popular Channel 5 show of the same name. As part of a botched extension, the builders had laid what they described as a temporary roof to the large balcony area that also waterproofed the single storey extension, which was now leaking dangerously onto electric installations. SMA Roofing is an approved contractor for the Polyroof range of roofing solutions. They were approached by the film producers to replace the leaking felt with a seamless, hardwearing Polyroof fibreglass membrane complete with an anti-slip finish. The couple were delighted with their new balcony which they referred to as being one of the highlight's of their home improvement. The Polyroof balcony system comes with a 20 year insurance-backed warranty for complete peace of mind.

Established in 1969, Southwest Mastic Asphalte (SMA) Roofing Ltd is one of the longest established independent roofing contractors in the South West catering to all roofing needs whether it is a Flat Roof or Tiled Roof. They can be contacted on 01752 6655918 or by visiting www.smaroofing.co.uk.

In a break from filming, Cowboy Builder's co-presenter Melinda Messinger poses on the new balcony with Polyroof's Andrew Davies (left) and Antony Ridolfo from SMA Roofing.

Polyroof's Andrew Davies presents homeowners David and Lara Wosencroft with their 20 year Polyroof 185 guarantee.